RANJIT EDWARDS QUICKLY gets his things together as he rushes to his next class.

OUR WAY...

LOOKING

THE 1986-87 School year started with Pride, Tradition, and Excellence. A leadership conference training course during the summer prepared our student leaders to make the best of the new year. By starting after Labor Day, we had a few more precious days of sunshine worship, summer jobs and summer fun before we looked toward the opening of school. The routine was new yet familiar.

The first week of school was a change in eating, sleeping, and thinking habits. No longer were we able to sleep 'til one or stay out 'til three. Thoughts of "it's too early to be up" surfaced, but a new tardy policy peeled us out of bed. Bells ruled our lives.

Instead of when to go to the beach, we thought of when we wanted to go to lunch or "brunch", for those of us with the first lunch wave.

Everyone wondered how messed up his or her schedule would be or how easy locker combinations would be to remember.

Our look was proud, traditional, and excellent. As we marched in our new band uniforms, won hockey and football games, practiced silence on silent day, listened to Mr. Waddell make the announcements, wore our big sweaters, took tests, we built our look — look our way.

Forward Motion

At the commencement of the school year, students were forced to shift gears and proceed full speed ahead. The tradition of spirit and hard work, native to a James Monroe student, remained fastened to his heart, but new attitudes and an even deeper sense of school loyalty developed. Enthusiasm was exceptionally alive in all aspects of school life; the academic world welcomed new teachers and more advanced courses of study; the sphere of sports celebrated the arrival of new-comer coaches; and the social circuit added new school traditions to its belt. The James Monroe family walks its way with courage and confidence, not knowing what the future holds but ready to meet whatever it encounters.

MR. ROBERTS LETS "LOOSE" and takes a break from class.

KURT MOELLER WAVES this way after showing off his "Band Member of the Week" Award to his friend from North Stafford High.

GOING FOR FIRST PLACE is Nichole Johnson, followed closely by Karen Young and Stephanie Griffis.

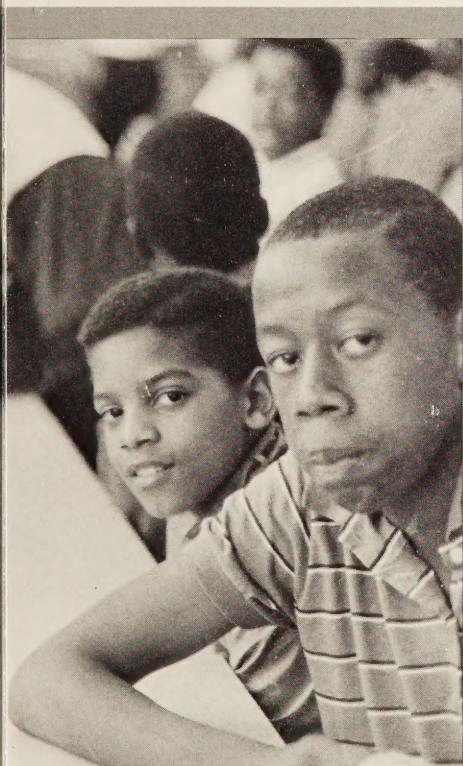

JOBY COAKLEY, MELVIN SMITH, Terry Johnson and Herman Baskerville wait for dismissal to move on to the next class.

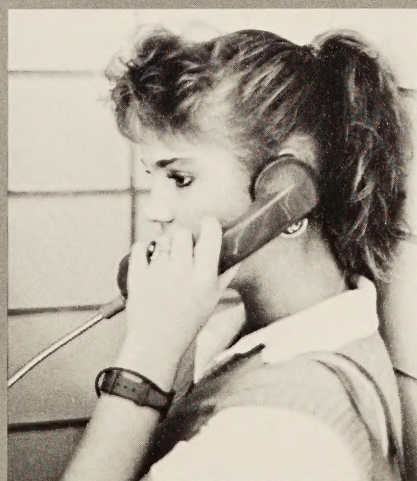

SENIOR ANTONIO COGHILL gives his right arm's best to put a unique forward motion on the ball.

WENDY PARKER AND Tabatha Unroe give the sign to show how much they love cheerleading. Fellow cheerleaders Tiffany Govenides, Alana Holland, and Ashleigh Harris wholeheartedly agree.

SHERRY MEYER TAKES time between classes to make an important phone call.

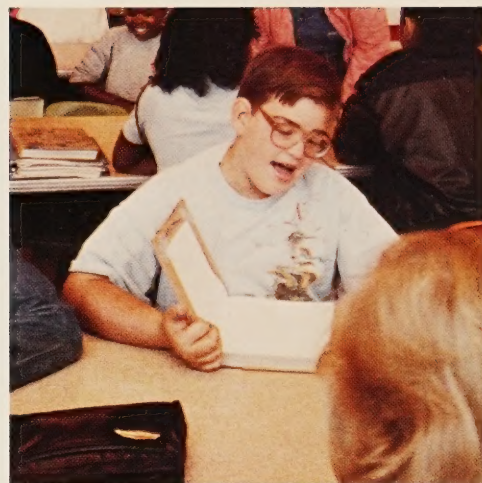

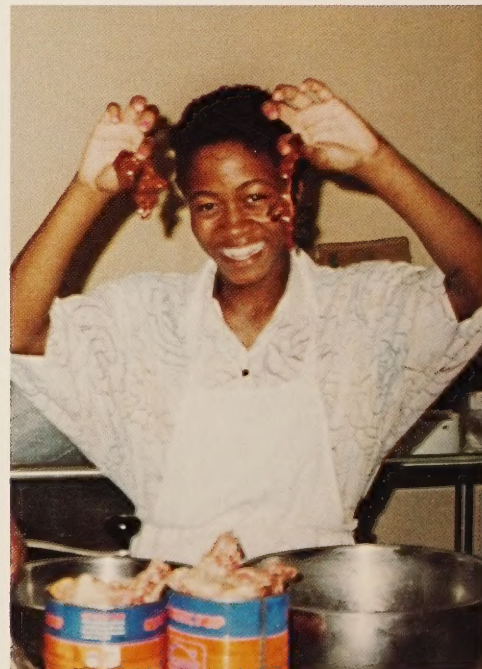

SENIOR ROBERT MANN, a loyal Jacket supporter, reflects upon the upcoming Friday night activities. Along with many other enthusiasts, he prepares to cheer on another Jacket victory, go out for a bite to eat, and then party for a while.

TORY VAN LEAR, TOM BENNETT, Martin Thorstead, Stephanie House, Laura Reeder, and Tyler Scott enjoy a lively conversation at lunch.

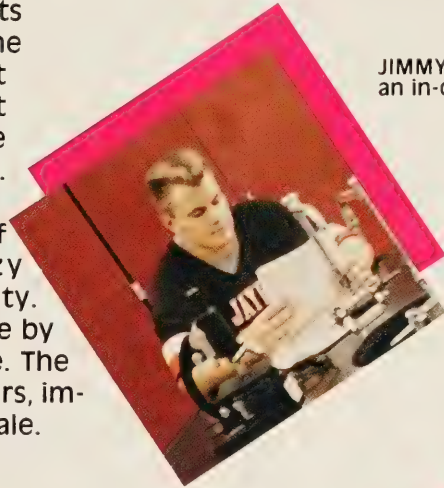

ROBERTA "MISSY" BRADFORD PREPARES delicacies for the next senior lunch wave.

ON THE MOVE

In all aspects of daily life Jackets were on the move. Always on the upswing, Jackets made the most of their year. Deep thought went into the social moves that were ever present at James Monroe. Hard work made academic moves worthwhile. Moves of affection displayed the cozy warmth of students and faculty. Talented movers livened the pace by sharing their gifts with everyone. The year was full of movers and shakers, improving all-around on a grand scale.

Student Life

We didn't take things sitting down. Student life just wasn't sitting passively in seats while teachers passed on information. We jumped, walked, smiled, worried, responded, yelled, danced, and grew as we looked our way.

A message to go to the office. How many times have I been tardy to first period? No — that's not it. I don't know — Balloons for me?! It's all in a student's day.

It's Halloween. Another message from the office. There's a gypsy giving me a phone message. I have to go to the dentist. Mrs. Laskowski (in clown face) signed me out. A Japanese lady peaks around the partition — and my English teacher was a damsel in medieval dress. What Next?

Did I forget the Christmas tree for the hospital is due today? 10 days til Christmas break.

Exams already?? About a million days until graduation, thought a senior. Winter was still here. There's nothing better, though, than a snow day — warm bed and a good sleep in! How many carnations will I get for Valentine's Day? Spring was in the air, finally.

2:40 — School's out! No. The announcements were interminable and nobody was listening. 2:41, 2:42, 2:43, 2:44 . . . and this is the end of your school day. BEEEEEP. Oh well, let's fight the bottleneck in front of Miss A's office for the last time. It's June 12th. The school year was over.

KIM RICHARDSON THINKS, "Ooops, I guess I'll have to try again."

PRIDE, TRADITION, AND EXCELLENCE HOMECOMING '86

The 1986 Homecoming festivities brought forth feelings of togetherness and spirit. The week opened with a humorous movie which reminded us: these are the best times of our lives. On screen we saw teenagers enjoying the adventure of high school and the compay of friends; James Monroe mirrored those images. Everyone felt Jayem pride in the excitement of both pep rallies and in the beauty of the candle-lighting at Maury. A new tradition was started by the soundless mouths of James Monroe on the first "Silent Day." Excellence ended the weeks's events in the form of the Homecoming Dance with D.J. Herman K., faculty, newly crowned Homecoming Court, and exuberant dancers.

DETERMINATION AND HOPE for victory are on Coach Serbay's mind.

CHEERLEADERS; BETH BLACKMON, Wendy Parker, Alana Holland, Ashleigh Harris, Carolyn Winnenberg, Tabatha Unroe, and "Spirit Bee" Debra Nichols, show their spirit and unity before the Homecoming Game.

Novella Patillo, Robert Mann, Jimmy Lam, and Linda Rosser send smiles and signals on Silent Day.

SOPHOMORES LIBBIE FARMER and Larry Trout receive their recognition as they walk towards the rest of the Homecoming Court.

AFTER INTRODUCTIONS, THE TEAM is psyched for the game against Louisa.

MAGIC SWIRLS

That ugly corsage, big enough to be a centerpiece for the dining room table, borrowing money from your big brother to pay for dinner, posing in front of the mantel to be blinded by flashbulbs: all go with the territory of formal dances. Homecoming and Junior-Senior Prom are two of the most remarkable dances of the year; couples arrive at the dance mysteriously transformed from run-of-the-mill to instant sophistication.

Lace, satin, velvet, and patent adorned rooms which were decorated to carry out the themes. The juniors made "Hits from Broadway" its prom backdrop, and the Varsity Club used "Twist and Shout" to set the mood for the Homecoming Dance. There were magic swirls in beat with the music and everyone remembers the static of young love: dancing in strong arms, gazing into warm eyes. Oops . . . watch your step. Do you think Cinderella ever tripped over her dress?

Having some fun at the Junior-Senior Prom.

CANDY SLAUGHTER AND her date are stunning in full length gown and tails.

WHEN THE BAND PLAYS a slow song, the dance floor gets crowded.

TAKING A MOMENT to chat are seniors Wendy Parker and Tabatha Unroe.

BILLY SUMMERS AND Eric Trout break for a quick bite between songs.

MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR COURT are Carrie Hallberg, Antonio Coghill, Tom Young, Dara Delamere, Bruce Fingerhut, and Wendy Parker. Junior Prince and Princess are Eric Bates and Jennifer Beverly.

VARSITY CLUB SPONSOR, Mr. Turner, mixes another batch of punch for the thirsty dancers.

AS THE PACE slows down, Amy Ridge becomes her date's "Earth Angel."

Classroom Plus

The Jayem curriculum has many offerings for a school of this size. Almost five levels of each subject area were offered to meet requirements for four different kinds of diplomas. It was a lot of hard work, but class work had many pluses. The summer standout was a Governor's Program for vocationally gifted students in Robotics and

CAD (Computer Aided Design), also, Student Leaders were involved in learning and teaching leadership techniques. The band — orchestra scheduling provided a new football performance format. For the first time a course was offered in Creative Thinking where students often role played and participated in simulations. To make learning come alive, teachers often found resource people to visit their classrooms. Perhaps resource person Jim Woodward, a Jayem alumnus, provided the most excitement when he brought his snake collection to science classes. His pythons were real extensions to an already colossal curriculum.

IN ADVANCED FRENCH CLASS, Charity Sheffield, Elizabeth Merrill and Meredith Parry work on a group assignment.

"KISS ME," SAYS JEFF Miller, a senior who seems to have no fears.

IN AN ACCURATE portrayal of the revered Mr. Burch, Mike Burch is a crowd pleaser in the Creative Thinking class.

"WRONG!" FLAUNTING THE sculptured nails is not Mrs. Zacchini but David Mackie.

DANCING IN THE S.A.D.D. Dance-a-thon, student leaders Susan Bennett and Tom Moulton work up a sweat.

FRIENDSHIPS MOVE BEYOND the classroom to a game of touch on the mall. George Coghill, Scott Pollard, and Greg Randall participate in the action.

PERCUSSIONIST ALEX BOWMAN orders a band portrait taken after Jayem's first competition.

Science Fair

Be There

Observe, hypothesize, experiment, collect data, interpret data, draw conclusions — the scientific method in operation. The Science Fair's main purpose was to have students apply this method to their own research. The fair also created an atmosphere of competition — within a specific subject, by grade levels, by teachers.

This was the second year of the event. It drew a large number of parents and students. Also, since it was the second year, students knew what was expected so that the quality of the projects was better. The grand prize winner, Andrea Manolis, conducted an in-depth experiment on the transport of nerve impulses. She found that the "Missing Link" in transporting nerve impulses to the heart is acetylcholine.

GO AHEAD . . .

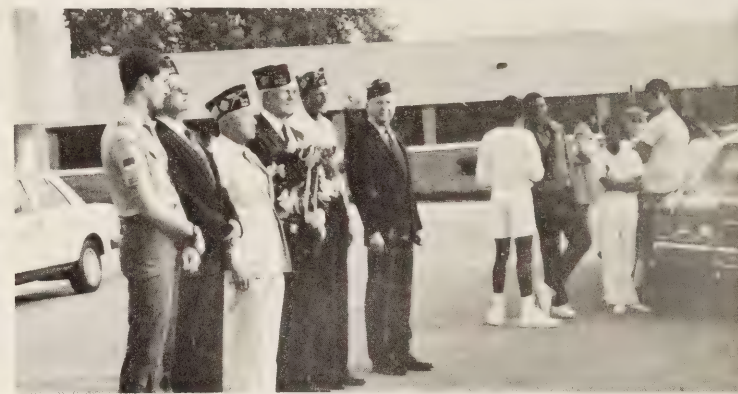

During this school year, special events relieved the routine of classes and the usual extracurricular activities. Resource people and visitors to the school always caused excitement. One visitor, alumnus Jim Woodward, brought his snakes. Japanese visitors asked us questions. Assemblies like Memorial

Day and Homecoming were also special. Joy was found in jobs well done — working together for a hockey championship or working with a coach to provide loyal help. But the joy of friendship was always most special and what really MADE OUR DAYS.

WHEN HELICOPTERS APPROACH Jayem, it is always an exciting time. We never know when a 'copter will land on the field with an emergency patient for Mary Washington Hospital.

THE AMERICAN LEGION color guard is ready to place a memorial wreath at our flag pole.

U.S. SENATOR Paul Tribble fields questions from our students.

TEACHERS AND STUDENTS stand in reverence at our Memorial Day ceremony.

THIS SPECIAL HUG from Mr. Durtan is a special event for the first female recipient of the Lowery Memorial Award, Wendy Parker.

OCCASIONALLY AFTER HOURS

PIANIST MARTI GONZALES plays with poise and confidence.

THE BLUES BROTHERS, Chris Allison and Ben Lawrynas, will never be forgotten.

DEF JAMMERS GREG Washington, Rocco Christopher, and "Q" McMillin bust some beats.

Talent doesn't happen overnight. Even though many members of our student body were blessed with special talents, they could not automatically just get on stage. Hours and hours were spent in rehearsal to polish their acts, to refine their performances. Then came THE OCCASION the second annual talent show sponsored by the Strings Program. To a packed house they played, danced, sang, and acted. The ultimate prize, 1st place, went to Yvonne Lucas for a dance that featured "Waving" and "snaking."

Other activities often preoccupied our students. Sporting events drew their share of spectators. But not all activities were school related. Community organizations, such as the Scouts, provided after school activities. One scouting highlight was Tom O'Toole making Eagle Scout in November. Anyone who said there was nothing for teens to do in Fredericksburg was wrong, but sometimes teens had to make their own fun with impromptu games, pizza parties and video sessions occasionally after hours.

AN ORIGINAL COMPOSITION brought second place honors to Keller Williams.

THE "GREEN" SCENE

Next to their studies, what could be most important to Jayem Students? Having a good time, of course! This involved dances, movies, shopping sprees, and sports events. This turned into a serious problem — lack of "green." This was then compounded by a student's more serious financial commitments which needed to be taken care of. For example, there were class dues, car payments, car insurance, gas money, and school supplies. How would a typical Jayem student solve all these money problems? Get a job! They took jobs in banks, pharmacies, department stores, beauty shops, and gift shops. There were fast food workers like Tasha Gowdy and Zena Samuels and there were the Mall workers like Amy Ridge, Amy Barnett, and Karen Young. All of them were trying to make the "SCENE GREEN."

LISA MANN GOES about her work at A&N store in good spirits as she puts snow suits on display.

LINDA ROSSER GIVES service with a smile at Little Caesars.

LINDA ROSSER AND Valerie Vida show that they can have FUN at work too.

WENDY CARRINGTON IS not exactly ecstatic as yet another customer visits the return counter at Sear's.

AFTER SCHOOL, ZENA Samuels keeps Jayem's front office orderly. She uses spare moments to study before going to a second job at Captain Dee's.

IF YOU CAN'T FIND Mrs. Woodward after school, these ladies will answer your questions. Towanya Jackson and Mary Beth Abner provide office assistance.

Doing it this way . . .

People

James Monroe High School has all types of people. Academic, athletic, artistic, and vocational are all words to describe our student body. The styles of dress and music varied greatly, but we all tended toward unity of ideals and pursuits. People made James Monroe an exceptional institution.

The eighth grade class, traditionally trampled by the upper-classmen, learned to integrate itself into school society. The bazaar hosted by the eighth graders was proof of their involvement. Mary Franklin commented that James Monroe was bigger than Walker-Grant, but she will enjoy her future years here. The eighth grade added much to the heritage of our school.

The ninth graders were no longer under the oppression they felt the previous year. This year they really started high school. They felt class unity in the paying of class dues and representation on the SCA.

The tenth grade was the interum between the lower and upper class. At times it seemed rather boring, revealed Amy Herndon. The girls' club of the tenth grade hosted the Spring Dance and enjoyed the planning and inviting.

The eleventh graders had the busiest year. Between receiving their licenses, class rings, taking PSAT's and getting college information, they also planned the Prom. The realization of becoming a senior hit the whole class and fun times accelerated.

The mighty seniors roamed the entire school as if they owned the place. They pampered and kidded underclassmen while plotting their future lives. Senior privileges insured a happy final year at James Monroe.

Our students, though varied, all respected and honored the name and ideals of James Monroe. This was a year for our people.

"WHAT? WHAT? WHAT?
WHAT?" All the students have what? . . . THE SPIRIT!

MOVING IN

Just Like Moving in to a different neighborhood, moving into an unfamiliar school can be very exciting but also scary. New friends and more experiences were all part of the territory. A variety of clubs, organizations, sports, and class selection were all options for the class of 1991. Although the transition from middle school to high school was difficult, the new Jackets welcomed the challenge. Students in Ms. Cordell's fourth period English class admitted being scared to move up to Jayem, but quickly felt a part of the school.

Eighth graders were a contributing part to the life at James Monroe. In some ways, they were still separated from the rest of the students. For example, in athletics, some sports allowed eighth graders to participate on the junior varsity teams, such as hockey, football, basketball, and baseball. Other sports including track and cross-country did not exclude eighth graders from running, but their scores did not count. This separation, however, did not keep the determination from running low. Although some athletic scores did not count, grade points did count toward their cumulative credits. Eighth graders had been here for three years and were a part of the school; but soon the new school will be built and they will no longer be here.

Fresh Outlook

Holding their heads higher, the Freshman class, last year's underdog joined in the Jayem activities with a fervor. No longer stereotyped, the ninth graders were allowed to become integrated into the social life of our students. Freshmen can participate in sports which are now "counted." Their requirements for academic classes involve the basic English, Math, Physical Education, and everyone's favorite — World History, or Geography. These are all a part of the daily activities which make the life of a freshman exciting and adventurous.

Best Foot Forward

Chris Peyton says,
“Geez, this test is hard.”

When we asked members of the freshman class their opinion of James Monroe, we received several different comments. Included in their opinions were that Jayem was really large compared to the middle school, that they now felt accepted by upperclassmen, and that overall they think J.M. was a nice school. With the addition of eighth grade, the students had time to become better adjusted by the time they become freshman.

Settling Down

Sophomores began the new year feeling more in place. They felt like the year would be a better experience for them because they were older and more mature. The sophomores were looking forward to class meetings, sports, and many other extracurricular activities. When Mrs. Clark was asked to make a statement about the class meetings she said, "Even though we got off to a S-L-O-W start, we hoped for a fast finish!" Fund-raising was a priority. The Junior-Senior Prom was a upcoming responsibility for the sophomores.

Sophomores felt like this was going to be the year to settle down and concentrate more on their academic classes. They were thinking about career goals and what college they might want to attend.

Sophomores realized that academic studies had to be important in order to participate in activities they wanted to do.

A Perfect Ten

A perfect sophomore has many characteristics:

- He is a perfect rogue.
- He can almost drive.
- He is like the middle child in the school.
- He asks who, what, where, why, how about everything and everybody.
- He can spell "sophomore" correctly.
- He likes himself. When asked to describe "What a perfect tenth grader was like," they said: We have looks, talent, style, good looks and good grades. We're energetic and awesome and crazy! With enthusiasm, the class of 1989 waits for graduation.

We began the year with the frame of mind, "we're almost seniors!" It seemed as though the entire year would be geared towards preparing for our exciting final year. We soon found out, however, that being a junior had just as much to offer. Unfortunately, it was time to buckle down academically. This included everything from SAT's to those famous Burch tests. However, we were still able to spare time for the activities that make the high school years more memorable. We were finally able to purchase our class rings, we had our first prom, and the practice of bumming rides was in the past. Through the good times and the bad, we had a great year, and we were proud to be called the CLASS OF 88!

French Fries and EVERYTHING

LUNCH SEEMED A little easier this year as we became Juniors. Since the Seniors were in the "nook," we became the head of the lunchroom. No more three to a seat for us! Instead, we became the ones who pressured others!

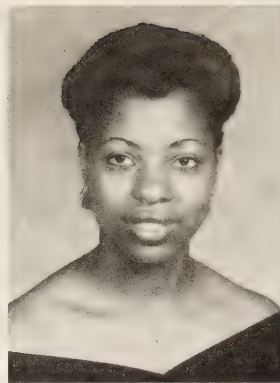

Although we felt we were the head of the cafeteria, the lunch was the same for all of us! We were served many interesting combinations like pizza and macaroni, spaghetti and french fries, chicken and french fries, EVERYTHING and french fries! Even though the food was not the greatest, being with our friends provided a nice break from our busy schedules.

HOPE MORRIS, Tiffany Govenides, Alana Holland, and Cory Willis take time out from French IV class to "parler."

UP ON TOP

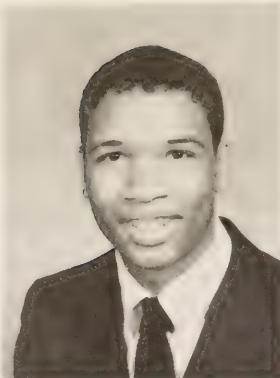

Dreams keep one reaching for the top. As seniors prepared to graduate, all of them had dreams: whether of going to college, the armed forces, or the world of work. Tammy Davis' dream was typical. She dreamed of going to James Madison University to major in music. She had always been interested in anything related to the fine arts. She had prepared herself by participating in the Maranatha Touring Choir, the Youth Folk Choir of Fredericksburg Methodist Church, the Voices of Youth, and by doing solo work. Aside from hopes of marriage and children in the future, she wants to perform professionally and/or own her own night club. With all seniors, the future depended on talent, preparation, hard work, and, of course, luck. Hopefully dreams will be fulfilled and everyone eventually will make it to the top.

What are Seniors?

Most Seniors seemed to be self-assured; Julie Herndon mirrored this image. She was President of our award winning DECA Chapter. In her junior year, she attended state leadership conferences and had been nominated as DECA State Student of the Year. Julie worked at TCBY and participated in the pom-poms.

She hoped to put her leadership abilities to work in the field of psychology. Perhaps the highest compliments came from Julie's sister, Amy. Amy said, "My sister is a nice person, a friendly person, and I respect her."

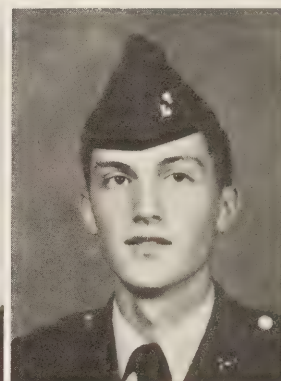

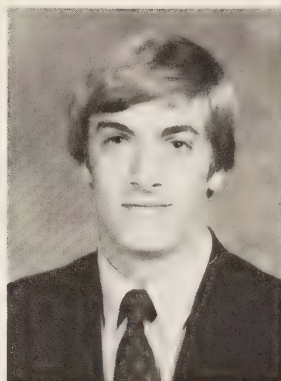

JULIE HERNDON PAUSES to choose her words for an English composition.

MICHAEL CHARLES LEMOINE: "Thank God"

JAMES "J. LUV" LAM: Be the best you can be, but not like me cause I'm "J-Luv" from the heavens above.

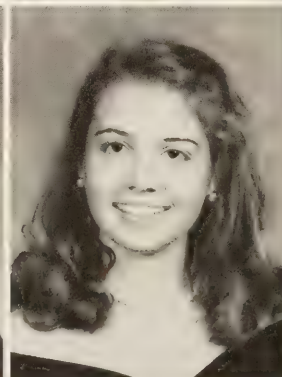

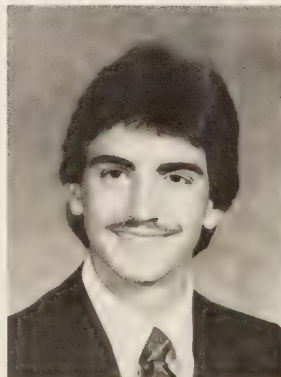

CHRISTLE LEWIS: What you may seem to be, be really.

STEVEN ANTHONY LOROENZO: Why not, you only live once.

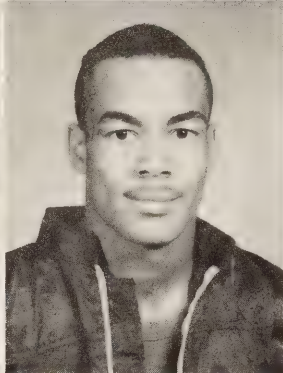

KATHLEEN ANNE LUCEY: Life is never easy, but it is the magic of the mind and the pen that soothes the rugged way.

ROBERT ALLEN MANN: Take it easy, if it's easy take it twice.

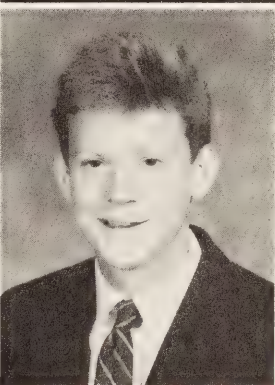

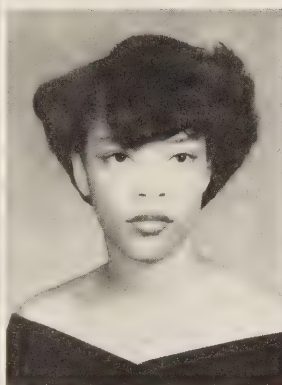

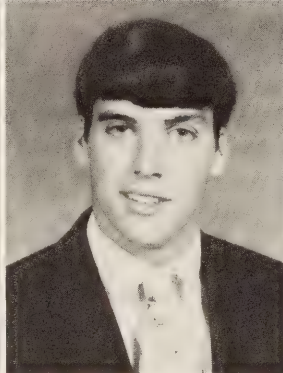

ELIZABETH WYNN McDANIEL: "Every job is a self-portrait of the person who did it. Autograph your work with excellence."

MASTER CRAFTER

Jimmy Lam is a typically well-rounded senior. He participates in clubs, intramurals, and works at Pizza Hut. But Jimmy is an exceptional craftsman and does intricate work for the Cabinet Shop. He does refinishing, caning, and carpentry. Usually when you see him, you'll also see a smile and a boom box. He's been blessed with talent and luck.

JIMMY LAM STORES his design materials in his Comm Tech class.

MIA JOHNSON HAS the group's undivided attention for this bit of news.

WHAT'S NEW?

"Girl did you hear what happened Friday night?" was often the lead-in into conversations in the cafeteria, classrooms, bathrooms, and halls here at Jayem. Whether the talk was about schoolwork, the big plans for the weekend, or the weather, one was sure to see huddles of students passing the time by getting caught up on the latest news.

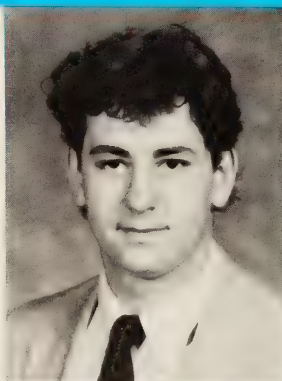

Talking with friends was one of the things that made the school day bearable. The time to do this was precious little, though, and grabbed at every opportune moment — some things just cannot wait.

JERRY ASHBY TRICE II: What a long, strange trip it's been!

TABATHA MANON UNROE: "Keep your face to the sunshine and you can't see the shadows!"

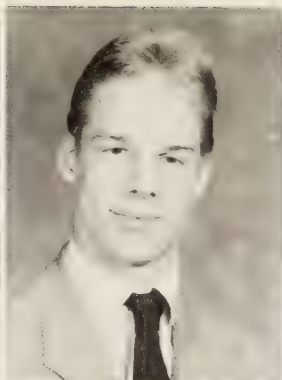

VALERIE SHAW VIDA: C'est la vie!

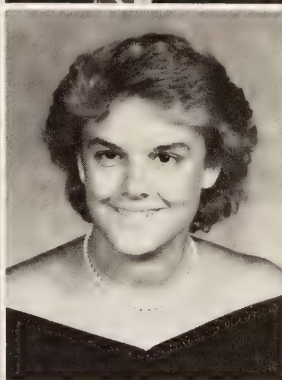

LISA DIANE WAGNER: Co-operation is doing with a smile that which you have to do anyway.

JOSEPH B. WALKER
GREGORY WASHINGTON: "I'm Chillin'"

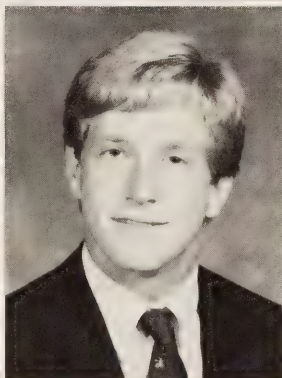

MONDELL "HERMAN" WASHINGTON: "I made it!"
 ALISA J. WATKINS: It is more fitting for a man to laugh at life than to lament over it.
 — Seneca, "On Peace of Mind"
 JARED KENT WHEELER
 CHRISTOPHER WHITE: What kind of name is Daddy? I don't know. That's why, when called Gus, I put up no fuss.

MARGARET LEE WHITAKER: Thanks to mom and dad for all your support. To Roy, I'll love ya always.
 TYREE WHITE: Thanks to Shirley, Aunt Lillie, and Uncle Maurice I made it. Love y'all.
 RICHARD DEAN WILLIAMS: The future of our lives depends on employing well the short period of youth.
 CHERYL LYNN WITTER: Write down the advice of him who loves you, though you like it not at present.

KAREN DENISE YOUNG: I must leave my past, for the future is bringing my tomorrow; but the memories will stand strong forever.

OUR ANGEL, CANDACE

After wiping the tears away,
 We realize that she is not gone.
 Seeming so distant
 She has never been closer
 It's as if those initials "C.C.J."

Never having the chance to be
 Carved in an oak tree
 Are forever "carved" in our fond memories.
 That laugh — filling the classrooms
 With cheer and recognition of jokes,
 That smile — brightening the worst of the dark days,
 That happiness, and optimism — always
 Comforting a wounded soul,
 Though only staying in presence for a short while,
 We now realize the symbol of generosity
 And beauty that she was.
 Time seems to have caught us
 In a whirl of confusion and decision
 Yet this is the important year and
 One we dedicate in loving memory.
 This would have been her year of graduation,
 But past tense is not really appropriate.
 She is still with us, gently touching our hearts,
 Showing us always the good things in life.
 So let us take the brief moments away from the busy times,
 And remember our blessed angel . . .

 for The Class of '87

the BEST

How did one become the best or the most? Of course, in terms of senior class superlatives it was by vote of the entire senior class. But to become "the best" or "the most" of any category, the student often started with some inner gift or natural born talent and combined it with nurturing or discipline. This year's winners were no different. When looked at closely, this was what they possessed.

Being best dressed didn't merely mean being able to afford fancy clothes, it meant style and sophistication. Elizabeth McDaniel and Kirk Edwards had the flair for finding the right combinations and the manner to model them stylishly. To be a clown meant to make people

the MOST

KIRK EDWARDS AND ELIZABETH McDaniel strike a vogue pose in cashmere and fleece.

DELIGHTFULLY "LOONEY" ARE the class clowns, Scott Pollard and Ginny Fink. No one knows what they'll be up to next.

Can you Tell?

NO NEED FOR "Close Up" with the award winning smiles of Kate Lucey and Daryl Flynn.

laugh. To have that ability was a special gift, but Ginny Fink and Scott Pollard also had to have an environment that allowed them to be free enough and confident enough to express themselves. Dara Delamere and Tom Young seemed to have all the "right stuff" to succeed — intelligence, charming personalities, and discipline. They had winning attitudes and charisma. A pretty smile didn't automatically come from good looks. There was a special kind of radiance that seemed to come from within that graced the faces of Kate Lucey and Daryl Flynn. They expressed peacefulness. And that kind of peace was internalized in the quiet manner of Lisa Wagner and Ron Kelsey.

"SHH-H-H!" LISA WAGNER and Ron Kelsey tell each other. Keep in mind that quiet doesn't necessarily mean shy.

MERCEDES AND MONEY don't necessarily spell success, but Dara Delamere and Tom Young seem likely to make it in whatever they might choose.

The JOYOUS Ones

Most SPIRITED

WHETHER IN EMPTY bleachers or hanging from the goal post, Robert Mann and Carrie Hallberg always whoop it up!!

There were some people that just seemed to bring joy to our lives. That special joy brought them superlative honors. Robert Mann and Carrie Hallberg gave the joy of spirit and enthusiasm. They gave the extra cheer even if we were down. Therefore, Robert dressed up and won Black and Orange Day and Carrie's spirit fired the Championship Hockey Team and Varsity Cheering Squad.

There's a great excitement and a pounding of the heart which comes from a cautious flirtation. Dee Dee Powell and Bruce Fingerhut gave us that kind of joy. The unusual and the original delighted us. Heather Pain's creativity colored this yearbook and promised artistic excellence in the future. Juno Pitchford's ability to "bust some beats," rap, draw, and make sarcastic cracks had us dancing, clapping and laughing. Nothing

Biggest Flirt

THE LIBRARY STACKS prove to be the perfect place for a sly glance or quick wink of the flirtatious ones, Deirdre Powell and Bruce Fingerhut.

Life before GRADUATION

The seniors had numerous decisions to make this past year. When colleges came to mind, the question were "Which one?" and "What major?" Mrs. Merchant had countless appointments with seniors who wanted help in order to decide what they would do after graduation. "If I do not go to college, what do I do?" was one of the many questions that she had to help answer. For those that were thinking about going into the service, ASVAB tests were offered. FBI associates came and gave tests for other seniors who may have been interested in typing and other aspects of business.

Life after graduation seemed more real than ever before, and although it may have been scary, it was also exciting. Conversation about moving out of the family

Believe it or not, after leaving the high school seniors will miss many of the things that they took for granted during their years here. Friends who were always around will take off in different directions and probably won't be seen until college holidays or even a high

After an one hour and forty minutes test, four James Monroe students, Kurt Moeller, Alisa Watkins, Debra Nichols, and Juno Pitchford, were Merit Semifinalists. About 15,000 young men and women throughout the 50 states were named in the fall and were eligible for Merit Scholarships.

Fitting in

Martha Blasiak, a foreign exchange student from Sweden, spent her senior year at our school. She fit right in. Her first parent sponsor suggested she join the pom pons so she could get to know more people. She practiced three mornings a week, learned four routines and made some good friends on the squad.

Martha will have to "redo" her senior year in France, where they do not accept foreign degrees, so she can study medicine. She enjoyed her American stay and she was "Glad she came!"

Holiday Spirit

Orange and black being the school colors made getting into the Halloween spirit easy. A Japanese lady courteously did the bookkeeping. A clown face handed out absentee slips. A gypsy ran the copy machine in the main office. A flapper worked in guidance and a medieval maiden taught the King Arthur legends. The Great Pumpkin spirit of the teachers helped the students get into the holiday spirit for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Friendly Faces

Students not in D.E. thought of those lucky kids who always got out of school early and only took three or four classes — plus they always got to go on field trips. And, oh, yes, they had pencils and paper for sale in the D.E. store if you couldn't bum any off a buddy.

Being "friendly" was a skill of being successful on the job and not just the motto of the D.E. store. Distributive Education — with Mrs. Stone as an excellent model — taught students how to deal with people with courtesy and kindness.

D.E. COORDINATOR Bonnie Stone works in her office — although most of her time is spent supervising her working students on the job.

Even though Mickey Mouse was over 50 years old, he still was a popular character. COKE definitely won the taste test — if not to the palate then to the trendsetter's taste — Coke was it in the T-shirt market. Along with the J.M. orange and black shirts of various designs — especially the new State Championship T-shirts, J.M. students advertised various pop stars, vacation spots, colleges, and, all showed the mood and style of the wearer.

THE WAY

This year was one of active participation not only on the part of our students but for our faculty. They shaped up academically and physically. Mr. Durtan received his Doctorate of Education. Three of our English instructors attended a Convention in San Antonio, Texas this fall. Also, our seniors will be enjoying their Senior Trip this year, thanks to the coordinating efforts of Dr. Comerford.

Finally, this year we placed a great emphasis on pride here at James Monroe. Mrs. Matalavage sponsored a Pep Squad to cheer our basketball team to victory. Most of all the one event that will stand out the most in the hearts of our loyal Yellow Jacket fans, is the AA Division II State Championship captured by our football team, coached by Mr. Serbay. Through the efforts of all our faculty, the students have learned the true meaning of our motto: PRIDE, TRADITION, AND EXCELLENCE!

Year after year, it seemed the part of school that leaves the biggest impression on the students are the teachers. They were the ones who spent the extra time after school to tutor those who needed it, they were the ones who gave guidance throughout the year, and they were the ones who seem to received the least amount of credit, but deep down inside — they were the ones that the students did remember the most: whether they were the most favored, least liked, or the wittiest.

Ten years from now, we all can look back and remember staying up until 3:00 a.m. to cram for Mr. Burch's exam or waiting until the night before to do Mrs. Clark's Science project. We especially can't forget trying to recite Shakespeare lines to Mrs. Cuddy. Don't forget Mr. Carter's jokes in Biology class. All these were moments which stayed with us.

Rest and relaxation renewed Jayem's teachers. "Excellence in Education" went beyond the knowledge of subject matter. To really be excellent, the teachers had to be fit — mentally and physically. When they returned to school (the week before the students), they all participated in a WELLNESS PROGRAM. This program was initiated by some of the physical education teachers and coordinated by the assistant principals from all three schools. Teachers walked, swam, and played games. They buckled up for safety, cut down on salt intake, and shared lots of hugs. They went to interest workshops and sessions on topics such as Financial Planning and Time Management. Several ideas and activities carried over into the school year with aerobics classes being most popular. Jayem's faculty was determined to be the best it could be.

RENEWAL

Learning this way with Academics

Academics this year, as in every year, remained the mainstay of James Monroe. Whether it was honor roll or an A on Mr. Burch's tests, the students always had something for which to strive.

The National Honor Society continued to uphold the tradition of excellence at James Monroe by its standards for admittance. These standards were set so that students participating in sports, activities, clubs, and academic contests would strive to meet the 30 point requirement of admission, signifying a well-rounded student.

To enrich the academic experience, the media center not only offered a quiet place to study, but also materials and even computers, which helped students check their qualifications for prospective careers through the Virginia Career Search.

Along with these opportunities and through the wide range of courses available in such fields as business, academic, and vocational areas, students were able to obtain a strong base on which to build in college or the world of work.

All of these aspects, including the qualified and helpful teaching staff, combined to make James Monroe an academic force to be reckoned with in the community — proving that we were learning this way with academics.

Slowly in a dream-induced haze, you reach to push the snooze button again when reality slaps your hand in the form of your mother. Welcome to the Real World, it is Monday morning.

It is a familiar scene, you experience it every week. You have just had a great weekend and dream of sleeping like Rip Van Winkle, when Monday morning comes along and grudgingly you rise with the early birds, not to catch the worm, but to catch the school bus.

Once at school, the fatigue and drowsiness are shrugged off and another week of classes begins. These five days are filled with great teachers, interesting classes, and friendly students. All thoughts of repose are forgotten in favor of the James Monroe High School learning experience — Education at its finest. Whether it is a Burch test, math contest, or band competition, Jayem students always strive to do their best to represent their school to the utmost of their ability. That, combined with the advanced curriculum and many different types of diplomas offered, makes James Monroe one of the most respected schools in the area. With these things in mind, one cannot help but be snapped out of the daze that comes with a Manic Monday.

HuMp DaY

Wednesday is always called "Hump Day." Mid-week crises seem to set in. With learning gears in motion, from the day before, the mind starts filling up and one thinks, "If I can just make it through the day, it'll be downhill to the weekend." On Wednesday, simple directions seem a bit harder to follow, lunch time finds one a bit hungrier, homework seems more difficult, health problems seem more prevalent. But Jayem had a remedy for every problem: clarified directions, the Nook, homework explained, a caring nurse. All these remedies and more pulled us over the hump and made the going smoother.

Together on Thurs

By Thursday it almost feels sad that the weekend is coming. We've finally gotten it together, made it over the hump, and found that learning isn't so bad after all. We wanted to complete all kinds of projects — needlework for Ms Darden, a drawing for Ms Larson. We wanted to find that college information with Mrs. Merchant or solve a program on the computer for Mr. Vassar. The joy of learning pulled it all together.

The trials of TESTS

TEST DAYS COME ALL THROUGH the week. Early Morning Monday tests were hard to swallow even with our coffee. Tests in the middle of the week were looked for and studied for by all. Friday tests were an interruption of our weekend plans. The students were not ready for tests anytime, yet the teachers assigned tests all the time. Notes were traded, friends were consulted, paper was rouged and finally tests were taken. Juniors were frightened of Mrs. Gordon's tests. Everyone became worried about a Cralle test. Art tests were the real killers because Mr. Johnson really put on the pressure. Drivers' Ed always broke Kim McGlue into cold sweat. Tests were a trial in patience and responsibility. Any and every day of the week afforded a chance to take a test.

PAPERMATES

This year both journalism classes learned the meaning of hard work. Much time and effort went into the publication of The Spotlight and The Monroe Echo. Staff members had to be well-rounded. They had to be able to take and develop pictures, as well as write copy and put together layouts. Unfortunately, there was never enough time for these things to be done. Lots of rushing around was done as deadlines grew nearer and everyone's patience grew shorter. However, the final products were definitely worth all that the students put into them.

Symphonic Sounds

The JMHS String Orchestra took on unprecedented numbers as they played their way through numerous concerts. For the first time the Strings combined with the band to form the only full orchestra in the area with over eighty people participating. This group played at the winter and spring concerts and Sights and Sounds. A fifty piece string group also played at these events. When a smaller group was needed, the Chamber Strings group of approximately ten to fifteen members played in private homes, on the Candlelight Tour, and for the senior musical. A student quartet often played in area churches. Individual players Alisa Watkins and Tom Reeder went to senior regionals and, along with So Young Park, were members of the College Community orchestra.

NU ATTITUDE

The band has had a new "attitude" this year. A person was hired to help the band director, Mr. Jordan, choreograph a show for the band including songs from Excaliber, The Tennessee Waltz, Peter Gun, and Cherish. This was the first year the whole band had been in motion. It had been a different and exciting experience for everyone. This year the band started the year off very well by coming in 2nd place in the King George fall festival. The band also had a new look and attitude. New uniforms were very expensive, but well worth the expense. The uniforms gave the band an elegant and stylish appearance. From the support of the Band Boosters, the band will be going on a spring trip. Mr. Jordan,

Mrs. White, and Mrs. Macklin-Brock were very proud of the fine group of students.

"Lights, Action, Camera." This familiar terminology we often relate to the theatre. Well, the drama classes saw quite a bit of action this year while performing under the direction of Mrs. Nancie Lightner. The classes performed plays and skits for a wide variety of audiences.

Both classes performed comedy skits for this year's Sights and Sounds program. The students who participated in these drama classes certainly deserve a warm round of applause for their sincere effort they put forth in making each play a success. The long hours of practice, memorization of scripts, and dedication are what made these types of activities successful and enjoyable.

ORGANIZATION

Organizational activities played a big part in this year's school life, whether it was the French Club's annual Faculty Christmas Party, The National Honor Society's Blood-mobile, or the Key Club's White Christmas drive. Many students contributed their time and effort to make these activities successful.

Other organizations continued to represent James Monroe in diverse ways and fields: DECA in the Type-a-thon for leukemia, SPOTLIGHT in the publications area, and the VARSITY CLUB with their Toys For Tots drive.

With the combined efforts of these and other organizations, JMH continued to shine as one of the most socially aware and spirited schools in the area.

Seniors were known to be the most important people in Jayem. Seniors were the people which the "underclassmen" looked up to. They were the academic and athletic leaders and they always demonstrated their authority.

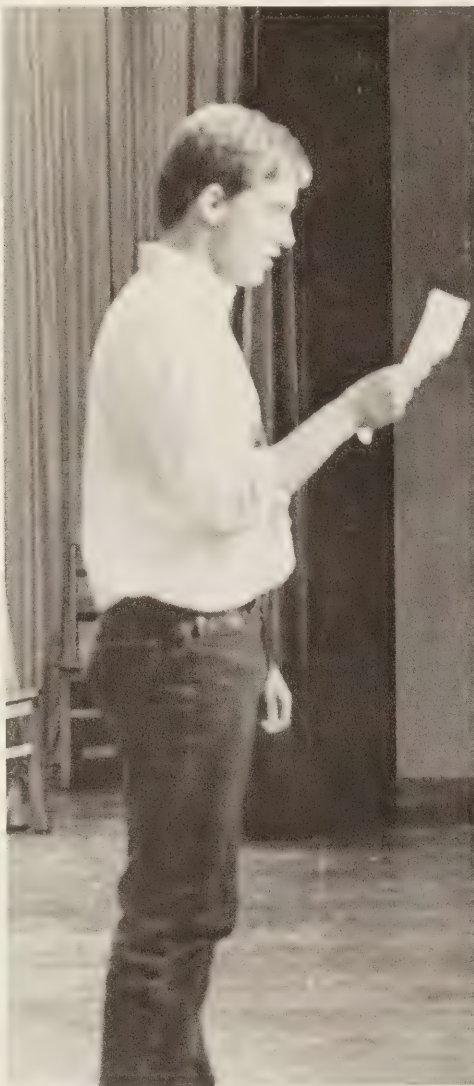

As usual the Seniors put on a major stage production. South Pacific was the name of the 87' Senior play. Selected members of the Senior class were cast for the parts.

High school students looked forward to many things, but most important was the joy of becoming a senior. Dara Delamere struggled to procure more senior privileges, and the Senior Planning Council worked hard on making the senior class successful.

The Senior Planning Council, the Senior Class Officers, and the Student Council Association were involved in many uplifting school oriented activities, such as pep rallies, fund raisers, and dances.

DECISIONS, DECISIONS, DECISIONS!! Band? Theme? Decorations? Budget? The great difficulties of planning a prom go to the Junior Planning Council and class sponsor, Mrs. Critchfield.

BEING SECRETARY OF the Sophomore class sometimes gives Liz Lucey a headache.

THE LEADING STRIDE — Class Officers

Head of the class was what these students were. Class Presidents, Vice Presidents, Secretaries, and Treasurers joined together to lead their individual classes. Each class elected what it thought were their leaders.

After being chosen to take charge of the class, officers met with their sponsors. Sponsors play an important role in making the final decisions. The eighth grade officers work with their sponsor, Mrs. Hansen, to create some original fund raising ideas that would help in years to come. The Freshmen and Mrs. Scott sold doughnuts, key chains, and painter's hats with the Jayem logo. Mrs. Clark and her sophomores prepared for next year's expenses by selling popsicles, doughnuts, stadium cushions, and holding dances after some of the basketball games. Mrs. Critchfield and the junior class officers strived to make this past year's junior/senior prom one to remember. Much effort went into planning the prom. Collecting dues, choosing a band, advising assigned committees, making arrangements with administrators and much more made the 1986-1987 junior/senior prom spectacular.

C'EST LA VIE

Jayem students had a variety of four languages to choose from, and no matter which they chose, there was a corresponding club. The German Club, the French Club, the Latin Club, and the Spanish Club provided opportunities for them to socialize, learn, and share in the manner of different cultures.

Each club had activities that were enjoyed by many. The German Club held a crafts bazaar at Hugh Mercer Elementary School, built gingerbread houses, went to German restaurants, and hosted a German festival. The French club held a faculty/student Christmas party with all sorts of French goodies. The Spanish Club held a door decorating contest at Christmas and gave a decorated tree to the Children's Ward at Mary Washington Hospital. The Latin Club held numerous Pizza Parties at Mr. Gatti's. All of the clubs enjoyed a fun, active year.

Every week forensics contest participant Leigh Brumfield met with the team to practice her skills. Meeting twice a week, Leigh explained, was often necessary before a contest. Mr. Brumfield, who had been on his high school's debate and forensics team, gave his sponsorship using the federal government's REACH program.

When It Counts

This year there have been many activities to keep Jayem exciting. The Varsity Club sponsored several activities, but two of its most successful were the Homecoming Dance and Toyland. Toyland was held during the Christmas season. Students brought in old toys which were repaired then sold for twenty-five cents. The Key Club sponsored its traditional White Christmas by collecting food for needy area families. An outstanding Key Club contribution was the huge Christmas tree which adorned our lobby. Key Club also sponsored two intramural basketball teams. In Math Counts, the activities were strictly academic. Under the direction of Mr. Vassar, this group of eighth graders took quizzes, reviewed math concepts, drilled on the computer and then competed against other eighth graders in the area. Math Counts also had a successful year.

Last year the Christian Support Group was born as a few students met every Tuesday in the senior dining room. The purpose of starting the group was to give the Christian students of J.M. an opportunity to meet with other Christian students and offer each other support and prayer in their daily lives. Guest speakers had also been a large part of the group's fellowship. Through fundraisers like the Fall Bazaar and donations from local churches, the group sponsored a Christian Rock Concert in the spring.

HARD WORK PAYS OFF!!

Our NHS members, DECA members, and Monroe Scholars received awards for their hard work this year. The Monroe Scholars were awarded plaques, pins, and cups at the honor's banquet for the hard work they did all year. These students made a 3.5 with nothing lower than a "C" for all four nine weeks of the year. There were more Monroe Scholars this year than there ever had been.

The NHS members did their fair share of work also. They had an accumulated grade point averages of a 3.5 or greater. After they were inducted, they had to keep up their grades and do work for the community, such as the bloodmobile.

THE DECA members had their work cut out for them also. They decorated Christmas trees for the hospital and made Christmas bags for the faculty. The new year started out with a "Leggett Take Over" day. Then they were involved in a district competition. Finally, they were off to a State Leadership Conference. These students will be rewarded in the years to come with their knowledge of business.

Running this way to Sports

James Monroe excelled in sports this year. Our Varsity Hockey team went undefeated in the district and was Battlefield District Champ for the first time in many years. Three players were named to the All-Regional Team — Carrie Hallberg, Kate Lucey, and Elizabeth McDaniel. Kirk Edward of our golf team went to state. Cross-Country had a lengthy, winning season with Elizabeth Merrill, Tom Molton, Meredith Parry, and Mart Van Lear running away with the lead. The team went to regionals and

Mart went to state. The Lady Jackets put forth a good effort in basketball. Our football team won the regionals and went on, to state with thanks to the new Division II play-offs for schools with small enrollments. Players winning All-Regional second team honors were Eric Bates, Brian Fisher, and Ronell Coghill. Honorable mention went to Ben Lawrynas. Last year's track team had many participants going to state including Elizabeth McDaniel, Wendy Parker, Eric Bates, Juno Pitchford, and John

Walker. All District honors for baseball went to George and Antonio Coghill. Both boys' and girls' tennis teams won District Titles. They were undefeated and went to regionals. JAYEM HAD A WINNING SEASON!

THE ULTIMATE GOAL

This year the varsity hockey team achieved its "ultimate goal," The Battlefield District Championship. With a record of 9-0 in the District and 9-3 overall, the Jackets were undeniably the best.

One of the most exciting games was the Jayem-Courtland grudge match

"Team experience, cooperation, and good coaching led us to the District Championship."

Dawn McIntosh

played at Courtland. It was a battle of skills and wills as the two teams went goal for goal. At the end of the second half the score was 1-1. The game then went into strokes, a single player shooting on the goalie. It was then that Libbie Farmer, sophomore, scored the only stroke and won the game.

The team was led by seniors Leslie Dunnigan, Elizabeth McDaniel, Carrie Hallberg, Kate Lucey, Elizabeth Greenup, Dawn McIntosh, Heather Pain, Heather Rackey and Anne Thompson. For these players, most of whom have played for three or four years, winning the District title was the "icing on the cake" of their high school careers. The initiations, "dead bug," sprints, and tough practices finally paid off.

The rest of the team, comprised of juniors and seniors completed the diverse group of athletes. They combined team spirit, refined skills, agility, and aggressiveness to complete this year's Championship team.

TEAM CAPTAINS DAWN McIntosh, and Anne Thompson lead the team off the field after the pre-game cheer.

CORY WILLIS MAKES her move to lose the defense.

HAVING A FIELD DAY

THE TEAM PSYCHES itself up for a tough game.

This year's Jayvee Hockey Team, led by captains Jill Miller and Courtney Murphy and coached by Ms. Elizabeth Fines, worked hard all season. Its dedication to the game showed in its play, if not its record. In Jayvee hockey, like all junior varsity sports, the primary goal is to gain experience that will prepare the athletes for varsity play. On a team as large as this year's, it was hard for everyone to get playing time. With a little under half of the team going into eleventh grade, it was important that the underclassmen gain experience. Look for them to be the leaders of the team next year.

MEMBERS OF THE JAYVEE Hockey Team look on as Julie Jones steps forward to accept her award at the Fall Sports Banquet.

Last fall, the James Monroe golf team enjoyed its best season in years. The team finished second in the district, third in the region, and sent two individuals to the state competition. The Jackets were led by senior Kirk Edwards and sophomore Ross Cash. Both players had strong seasons and strong post-season play.

In regular season play, the team finished 7-2 overall and 5-1 in the district. They beat Culpeper once and lost once, setting up a tight race for the district title at the Culpeper Country Club. The Jackets shot their best score ever, 311, but that wasn't enough to top Culpeper's 300. Ross Cash won the individual title tying the course record with six-under 66. Kirk Edwards and Neil Burton shot 79 finishing 6th and 7th respectively.

In the regional competition at Shenandoah Valley in Front Royal, the Jackets missed qualifying for the state tournament by two strokes. Harrisonburg shot 317, Culpeper 319, and James Monroe 321. Kirk Edwards was regional runner-up firing a 76. Ross Cash shot 80 (4th place), P.J. Newman, 82, and Michael O'Malley, 83. Kirk Edwards and Ross Cash qualified for the state competition in Wytheville. Again, Kirk finished runner-up with 76-75-151. Ross shot 80-79-159 for a seventh place finish. At the season ending sports banquet, Kirk was voted the Most Valuable Player while Ross received the Incentive Award.

A Running Start

Being a runner on the James Monroe cross-country team throughout high school has been a great experience for me. Practices were hard but helped us to grow into a successful team. New runners, Marcus Pomeroy, Robbie Ayres, and Martin and Mark Thorsted, filled in the holes left by last year's graduated members. Veteran varsity runners, Tom Moulton, Martin Van Lear and David Mackie helped to drive the boys' team to finish second in the District meet and eighth in the Regional meet. The girls' team led by captain Liz Merrill and veteran runners Meredith Parry, Jenny Freeman, Melissa Wagner, and Monica Chaffee led the girls to finish third in the district meet and to qualify for the Regional meet.

It was a year of adjustment and learning for the girls' basketball teams. Both the Varsity and Junior Varsity gained fresh players, and many of the JVs from the last school year were moved up to Varsity due to a lack of players. There were five sophomores and five juniors, but no seniors on the Varsity team. There was also a lack of height as the tallest girl on the team was 5'7".

Team effort and togetherness made up for the teams' losses. Trina Bumbrey and Tammie Coghill led the Lady Yellow Jackets with many outstanding plays, while the rest of the team gave it their all.

Getting on the

ALL MOST OF THE student body really heard about 8th grade football was the announcement, "would all eighth grade football players return their equipment." This, however, was not the only story behind these little jackets. Rain or shine the boys were practicing hard in order to strive for victory; yet many of the teams outnumbered them. Some of the players were forced to leave the team because of injury, discipline reasons, and academics, which made the team even smaller. Players that stood out on offense were Joby Coakley, Bucky Staples, Marquis

Hamm, and Emmanuel Symion. Stand out players on defense were Keith Garrison, Shawn Pope, Eric Trout, and Knuckles Turner. Coach Roberts said that next year we hope for a larger turnout and an improved won-lost record. The basic idea of the 8th grade football team is to organize teams and to instill a desire to continue playing on the J.V. and Varsity levels. Coaches Chapman, Roberts, and Simonpietri would like to thank all of the "Baby Bumblebees" for their effort and enthusiasm.

SHOOTING, THROWING, catching and scoring were all a part of the basketball players' strategy in the eighth grade. The girls' determination and long practice helped them through a hard fought season. The team lost two players, Dee Dee Frye and Tangie Wallace, to the junior varsity team. The girls had never played together as a team, which could have caused some problems; but that did not prevent them from progressing. With the help of Coach Poole they quickly learned to play and work together as one instead of individuals. She felt that the 8th grade program is basically a preparation for next year j.v. The girls ended the season with a 3-9 record.

The junior varsity football team had a tough season this year. Its final record was 2-4, but this did not reflect the hard work the players put into every game and practice.

The team was led by sophomore captains Allen Keller, Glen Lanford, and Andy Withers. Offensive standouts included: Shawn Williams, Glen Lanford, Richard Christopher, David Klotz, Damion Samuels, Cornelius Grayson, and Tripp Viverette. Defensive standouts included: Allen Keller, Alfonso Brooks, Andy Withers, Cornelius Grayson, Larry Trout, Carter Hansen, and Rick Starling. With the experience this year's freshmen received, their return next year should result in a winning season.

ON A MISSION

THE 1986 football season started out with a bang! The first game against North Stafford was the first in line for many victories for Jayem. Great coaching, fantastic plays, and a hard working team was a sure sign that they would go all the way to state.

It all began in late summer before school started. The object was to analyze this group of guys and put them into positions that would better the team. Hot days were spent running and practicing. They used a strong weight program to make the front line ready for the upcoming season. There were some new players, but most of the team had played together before, enabling the players to become a team rather than individuals.

The season began as a "Commitment to Excellence." The players took this motto to heart by being the best and not giving up. Although there were a few losses, the team stayed together and rethought their possible mistakes and worked on correcting them. After the disappointing Homecoming loss to Louisa, the Jackets had a week to recover. They concentrated their time on lifting the players' spirits and psyching up for next week's game. This resting period must have done the trick because the following week was an astonishing victory against the hard fighting

Mission Accomplished . . .

ALL OF THE hard work and practice had paid off. The dream of going into playoffs had become a reality.

The first step was winning the regular season games; that being done the next goal was set. Knowing this, the players realized they had to work harder. The first game was against Waynesboro. The little Giants, as they were called, did not have as good a record as we did, but they were still a strong team unit; even so the Jackets prevailed with outstanding efforts by Daryl

Williams and Kevin Johnson for a score of 19 to 6. The following week's game was against Turner Ashby. Their team was not as well rated, but they put up a good fight. Turner Ashby could not stop the determined Jackets as they once again accounted for another defeat.

Brunswick was the final step to state. The two and a half hour road trip appeared to worry some coaches and players; but as the time grew nearer to the game, the endurance of the players showed through. They arrived at the field with at least an hour and a half to spare. This time was used to relax and adapt to the surroundings of the country atmosphere. The game had begun with an appearance of hopelessness when Eric Bates, late in the first quarter, broke free for the game's first score. There was a turnaround for the Jackets as they continued to drive for more points to end up with a 26 to 8 win.

Hooray!!!! We made it. Unlike the other playoff games, this game against Laurel Park got off to a fast start with Antonio Coghill throwing a 42 yard touchdown pass to George Coghill. Laurel Park had a highly rated team and strong offense, but the mighty Jackets defense shut them down. After continuous great plays by the team throughout the day, the game was finally over, leaving the Jayem football team state champs and a lot of fans cheering. (MISSION ACCOMPLISHED!!!!)

not only working out but also a study hall. The study period was designed to help the players keep up their grades in order to stay on the team. After studying, the fellows hit the floor for a couple of hours filled with dribbling, shooting, and defensive plays. Foul shots were very important in close games and therefore time was taken in practice to perfect these. The team also worked on rebounds and passing techniques. Two year veteran Eric Bates felt that "the team was an enthusiastic, close knit unit that was willing to go that extra mile in order to ensure a victory." Coaches C. Sudduth and R. Burch gave the team all their knowledge on plays so that the team could improve their skills game by game. Captain Antonio Coghill continued to lead the team through the season with a 14 point average. Other leading scorers were Jeh Hicks, George Coghill, and Eric Bates. The team had determination and pride. These characteristics pulled the Jackets to a successful season.

"INTENSED" AS always! The Jackets form what they called a "stack," in order to beat the very tough pressured defense played by the Culpeper Blue Devils. This formation was used to break a man free for the ball and the basket. In most cases the "stack," as they call it, usually works! Though on this night our mighty yellow jackets needed just a little more to overcome the Blue Devils. We fell in defeat in front of the home fans who fully supported the team no matter if the team won or lost. A special thanks went out to those special cheering people for helping our Jackets through their season.

THROUGH THE HOOP

The J.V. Boys' Basketball team played exceptionally well this year. J.V. coach, Mr. Robinson, attributed the team's good season to their ability to work and play well together. This was demonstrated each time that they stepped onto the court. J.V. player, Glen Lanford said, "We played well as a team because we knew that our capabilities were unlimited and we just had fun." In addition, the Eighth Grade Boys' Basketball Team, who finished their season with a record of 5-6, achieved a great deal of recognition. Leading scorers were Danny Walker and Knuckles Turner. Her Honor

The Lowry Memorial Award is given each year to the junior who contributed the most to our sports' program. This person must have lettered in three sports. Last year, in addition to the honor of the award, our recipient, Wendy Parker also had the honor of being the first female recipient. When asked how she felt, Wendy said, "I was really surprised, I thought it was only for guys." Wendy lettered in Cheerleading, Gymnastics, and Track.

RUN, J.M.H.S.!

Track and Field is the oldest sporting contest known to man. In this world of Adidas and fiberglass poles, trophies and medals, it still comes down to an individual's ability. A person is only as good as he wants to be and James Monroe had a surprisingly good season last year. While there were many outstanding individuals on our team we had a well-rounded team. We entered the season ranked last in the district and finished fourth. We also won the Rappahannock Relays that were held here last year at our newly dedicated Arthur A. Schwartz Memorial Athletic complex.

Perhaps almost equal to the thrill of victory was the thrill of competition. While we didn't win every meet, our opponents always left knowing they were in a battle. Nowhere was the competition more fierce than at the state meet. James Monroe qualified athletes for the state competition in the mile, long jump, triple jump, 4x100 meter relay and sent three of our four member "hurdle crew" for the high hurdles.

No one can say just how good we'll be this year. However, we hope once again to be a force to be reckoned with. If we don't win this year it won't be because we didn't try.

HEATHER PAIN demonstrates the slogan, "no pain; no gain," during the Caroline meet.

COVERIN' ALL THE BASES

All bases were covered by four Jayem teams: Varsity & JV softball and baseball. Although no team posted a winning season, the players worked hard and kept high spirits.

The JV softball team was a new addition. Because the varsity team never had any experienced players, the varsity coach Ms. Kelly, was instrumental in getting Ms. Henderson to coach the JV's. The one JV win was as sweet as any. The varsity softball team had a lot of players to graduate but will be able to build with some outstanding newcomers including JV co-captains Janet Skinner and Kimber Richardson.

The Brothers Coghill were the standouts on the Varsity baseball team. The team posted three wins and placed sixth in the district, but both Antonio and George won honors. George was named All District pitcher, the team's MVP and leading batter. Antonio was on the second All District team and made All Area short stop. Another standout was Trevor Noakes. The junior varsity had a fine pool of talent including Glen Lanford, Andy Withers, and Larry Trout.

The tennis program, a spring sport at James Monroe, enjoyed a tradition of success that was unequaled by most other sports. The boys' team, reigning district champions, won the title for the three past consecutive years, to the credit of the superb coaching of Mr. Bob Callo-way. Scott Starling was last year's district singles runner-up while he and Tom Young won the doubles championship title. According to Tom Young, other key performers included Rick Starling, Keller Williams, and P.J. Newman. This year looks to be promising as well with last season's full team returning. Young, Calley Farmer, and Kirk Edwards will be enjoying their fourth varsity season, and hopefully their fourth district championship.

The tradition of excellence was not restricted to the boys' team alone, however. Last year the girls' team also triumphed to enjoy the district crown. Although several key players were lost to last year's graduation, Ashleigh Harris, Jennifer Edge, Libby Farmer, and Sherry Meyers gave noteworthy performances. With this returning talent and the coaching of Ms. Betty Poole, the girls' team hopes to successfully defend its title this years.

Stunts and Style

The Cheerleading seasons began way before the school year started. The grueling hot weather practices prepared the cheerleaders for camp in July. This undoubtedly took much dedication and time on their part.

During the year the cheerleaders spent most of their afternoons preparing cheers and stunts for the upcoming games and pep rallies.

Working this way with Community

The word community essentially means togetherness. James Monroe High School is a part of the Fredericksburg community and Fredericksburg is a part of Jayem. Mutual support was important during the 1986-87 school year. Civic groups honored our teachers during American Education Week, provided student competitions and scholarships, performed varied services including giving students athletic physicals. Parents and friends formed groups to boost the band, the library, and athletics. Resource people also volunteered to be speakers or mentors for the students. In turn, Jayem gave to the community — raking leaves for the elderly, performing music (choruses and band) for many functions, sponsoring events for senior citizens, teaching French to elementary students, giving blood, and of course providing many enjoyable moments in athletic competitions. The community gave to us. We gave to the community. Exchange and togetherness.

Double Whammy

There was quite a bit of excitement this past winter when nineteen inches of snow covered the ground. To the teachers and other working people, it was considered a disaster, but to the students it was DAYS OUT OF SCHOOL. The first foot of snow fell on a Thursday, during the week of exams. That Thursday, the third and fourth exams were scheduled. But the snow made it quite impossible to get to school. It was not long before the first snowballs plooshed through the chilly air and bundled up students looking to abominable snowmen grabbed their tubs or anything else they could slide down the hills in Fredericksburg and took off to have some fun. By Sunday, Super Bowl Sunday, it appeared that school would be open Monday, but then the second snowstorm rushed through and recovered the roads. There wouldn't be school for the next three days, and even on the return day, the school had to open two hours late. Oh well, as they say "all good things must come to an end."

James Monroe's Marketing Education Students were invited to participate in a day of on-the-job training in retail sales at Leggett Department Store at Spotsylvania Mall. On Take-over Day, the DECA members worked with employees of Leggett Department Store. They helped the employees with their daily duties. This activity provided insight of the total operation of a major department store; it also strengthened DECA's role and overall image in the community through excellent public relations.

The chairmen of the project were Terri Shifflett, Julie Herndon, and Richard Williams. The manager trainees were James Keller and Julie Herndon. The day was a success.

Heather, You have given us a gift . . .
an exuberance of spirit and a sense of joy in living that has made growing with you very special. Our gift to you has been "THIS BRIDGE"

This bridge will only take you halfway there

To those mysterious lands you long to see:

Through gypsy camps and swirling
Arab fairs

And moonlit woods where unicorns run free.

So come and walk awhile with me
and share

The twisting trails and wondrous worlds I've known.

But this bridge will only take you halfway there —

The last few steps you'll have to take alone.

Poem by Shel Silverstein
Love by Mom & Dad

GIVE THE DRUMMER SOME!!

My darling angel and precious child
Bust some beats and make the crowds go wild
Mike devastator, RAP rhythm creator,
Leaving me now, might see you on the Beta.
The name of JUNO was Coltrane's drummer
When I don't hear your beats it'll be a pure bummer.

So to KID SHAZAM, LUMUMBA KAHLIL
You've made my life full, sweet, rich, and real.
Have I told you today??

My love is infinite.

Whatever you need — just send for it.

Music is the language of the universe

I'll leave you the stuff that was some of your first:

HANDS, HANDS, FINGERS, THUMB
DUM DIDDY DUM DIDDY DUM DUM DUM.

Thank GOD I was/am blessed with you, MOM

CONGRATULATIONS

SENIOR DIRECTORY

WHAT DIRECTIONS? All directions that one can imagine. James Monroe led the area schools in academics, athletics, and community involvement. The enthusiasm with which we emerged our lives into our studies and sports was to be rivaled with no other. The year 86-87 was a grand success.

Our days were filled. Books overflowed in the lockers and paper floated from room to room, pens were passed between friends, and calculators were borrowed. Keller Williams said it took some time to memorize Pat's locker combination. Even though we concentrated on our books, there was time for extracurricular activities, too. Track, football, basketball, baseball, softball, hockey, gymnastics, tennis, cross country, golf, and cheering all occupied our time. These highly physical activities put us in a good shape and a good mood. All our teams accomplished much, especially our hockey and football teams. Both drove to the top with determination.

THE CROSS COUNTRY team shows its pride and unity by warming up together before a meet.

SCHOOL BOARD meetings are well-organized and very productive.

We also enjoyed intramurals in volleyball and basketball. Unfortunately the faculty team alone went undefeated.

The school board made many changes such as Saturday school, a new tardy policy, a different exam schedule, and new rules regarding the attendance of school functions. All these changes enhanced our educational and social life. The '86-'87 school year brought us closer together, yet we expanded in all directions. Jayem was constantly on the go, yet we paused to do it right. Our lesson learned was "WALK THIS WAY!"

A HAPPY ENDING

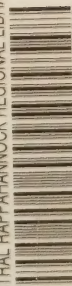

This year, as in all years at James Monroe, students, administrators, and faculty continued to symbolize Pride, Tradition, and Excellence. Whether in academics, athletics, or the community, James Monroe became well-known and respected as a force to be reckoned with. This dawn of awareness extended not only through the city and surrounding counties but through the state as well when Jayem became the Group AA, Division II State Champions. The memories of this year, a red-letter year in the history of James Monroe, will certainly be remembered for years to come.
